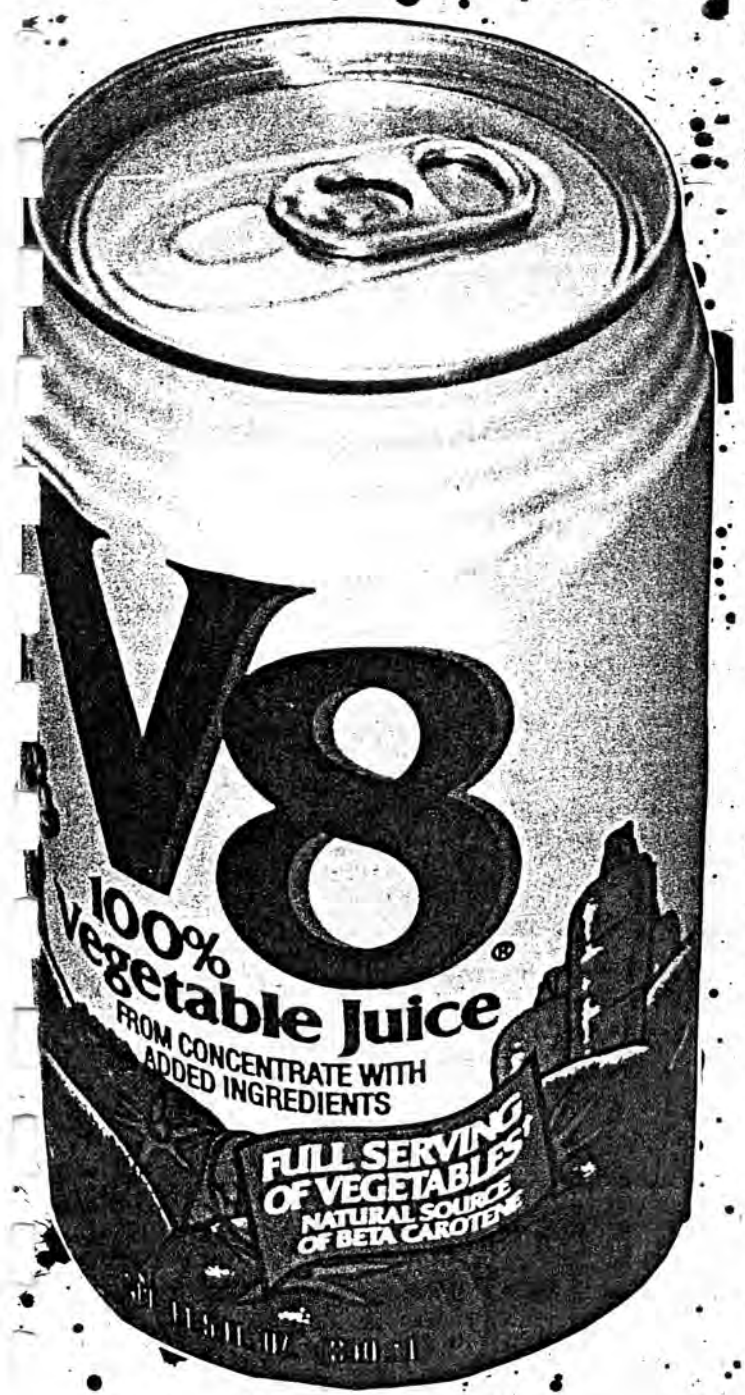
Intro:



Say it ain't so--The Harmony School Yearbook Goes Commercial. And not just a little bit, the whole book positively reeks of materialistic pandering. Page after page of tawdry endorsements, goofy slogans and lame testimonials. 185 snake oil salesmen--how did this happen?

Well, to be precise, participants were asked to endorse a product--something they use and feel loyalty towards. You know kids, they had to push things and before you could say "lagging economic indicators" they were endorsing things like: A Happy Thought, the Color Black, & Instant Evolution (just add time).

So, what we've ended up with, is a sort-of-semi-almost book of self-portraits. But to use Kurt Vonnegut's caution--well, you can read it on page 7.

After six tumultuous (at least for him) years of Jim Bakker's philosophic commentary, we'd like to introduce you to our new instigator, guiding light, and caretaker to the pulse of contemporary life : Kurt Vonnegut.

February 10, 1997

A few words of advice to my friends at Harmony School in Bloomington, in my native state, which is Indiana:

We are what we pretend to be, so we must be very careful about what we pretend to be.

Love as always --

Kurt Vonnegut

Dear Ms. Voyles:

Philosophically, I find it most difficult to think in an extensive materialistic way. After all, all the things we have obtained, purchased and been given are really borrowed. They are here for us to have temporarily. In the end they are returned in some way. What seems most lasting, in life, are the spiritual and personal relationships. They can't really be sold and in another sense of the word it would be difficult to buy them.

ESPecially,

KRESKIN

Shake it out & let it go...
Trager Mentastics...helps you discover the flow of the waters in your body and in your soul... as waves of energy find natural pathways and invite connections within beyond.

Somehow in outreach we're involved in a mentastics of sorts as we work with people to help them know themselves and their students in new ways. To shake shake out and let go of things that aren't working and open up to new pathways that foster growth and success.

For me Trager and Outreach help me to know myself, and to give and to receive life's energy in all it's twists and turns. The journey is unfolding and what a journey it is !!!

TIPS FOR PERFORMERS: Playing cards have the top half upside down to help cheaters. There are a finite number of jokes in the universe. Singing is a trick to get people to listen to music for longer than they would ordinarily. There is no music in space. People will pay to watch people make sounds. Everything on stage should be larger than in real life. LIFE ON EARTH: Men like pastries, women like custards. Scientists have invented a love drug, but it only works on bugs. Animals like earthquakes, tornadoes, and volcanic activity. Nuclear weapons can wipe out life on Earth, if used properly. People look ridiculous when they're in ecstasy. LIVING WITH OTHER PEOPLE: Violence on television only affects children whose parents act like television personalities. Table manners are for people who have nothing better to do. Civilization is a religion. Civilized people walk funny. There is always a party going on somewhere. People will remember you better if you always wear the same outfit. THE SPACE PEOPLE: Space People read our mail. The Space People think that TV News programs are comedies, and that soap operas are the news. The Space People will contact us when they can make money by doing so. The Space People think factories are musical instruments. They sing along with them. Each song lasts from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. No music on weekends. MONEY: People will do odd things if you give them money. When everything is worth money, then money is worth nothing. If you keep your money in your shoe, then people will know which bills are yours. If you crumple your money into little balls, it will never stick together. The best way to touch money is by the edges. U.S. money is the worst looking money in the world. WORLD TRAVEL: Passport pictures are what people really look like. Rich people will travel great distances to look at poor people. Toast is the national dish of Australia. People never travel to look at flat landscapes. People would rather watch things than eat. Looking at postcards is better than looking at the real thing. Looking up is as scary as looking down. IN THE FUTURE: In the future, women will have breasts all over. In the future, it will be a relief to find a place without culture. In the future, plates of food will have names and titles. In the future, we will all drive standing up. In the future, love will be taught on television and by listening to pop songs. WORK: Crime is a job. Sex is a job. Growing up is a job. School is a job. Going to parties is a job. Religion is a job. Being creative is a job. GROWING UP: Drugs affect children the opposite way they affect adults. Adults think with their mouths open.--Talking Heads (Stop Making Sense)

"It's 'If a body meet a body coming through the rye'!" old Pheobe said. "It's a poem by Robert Burns."

"I know it's a poem by Robert Burns."

She was right though. It is "If a body meets a body coming through the rye." I didn't know it then, though.

"I thought it was 'If a body catch a body,'" I said. "Anyway, I keep picturing all these little kids playing some game in this big field of rye and all. Thousands of little kids, and nobody's around---nobody big, I mean---except me. And I'm standing on the edge of some crazy cliff. What I have to do, I have to catch everybody if they start to go over the cliff---I mean if they're running and they don't look where they're going I have to come out from somewhere and catch them. That's all I'd do all day. I'd just be the catcher in the rye and all. I know it's crazy, but that's the only thing I'd really like to be. I know it's crazy."

beautiful, you're beautiful, as beautiful as the sun wonderful, you're wonderful, as wonderful as they come and i can't help but feel attached to the feelings i can't even match with my face pressed up to the glass, wanting you beautiful, you're beautiful, as beautiful as the sky wonderful, it's wonderful, to know that you're just like I and i'm sure you know me well, as i'm sure you don't but you just can't tell who'll you love and who you won't and i love you, as you love me so let the clouds roll by your face we'll let the world spin on to another place we'll climb the tallest tree above it all to look down on you and me and them
and i'm sure you know me well, as i'm sure you don't but you just can't tell, who you'll love and who you won't don't let your life wrap up around you don't forget to call, whenever i'll be here just waiting for you i'll be under your stars forever
neither here nor there just right beside you i'll be under the stairs forever
neither here nor there just right beside you

Bananas taste good. They smell good and they even look good. I ask my mommy whenever we are at the store we get bananas. Bananas are healthy and they provide great nutrition. Your moms and dads will always say yes to bananas. So, get your mom or dad to buy you some yummy bananas. Don't forget to tell your mom or dad that bananas provide great nutrition. They will be happy about that. Bananas--they will give you a smile so big you might blow. If your mom and dad are too lazy to go get you bananas, force them to do it and tell them about the great nutrition. Tell them that Kristen, the Banana Queen, sent you.

How Fried Chicken Saved My Life

I was turning the back 40 on the ol' John Deere when a rock got caught under the plow. As I worked the rock loose, the plow rolled forward, severing my right leg at the knee. I knew I would bleed to death if I didn't act fast. Just then, I remembered a chicken leg I'd been saving in the glove box of the tractor. I struggled until I reached the chicken leg and, then, pulling out it s long, black vein, I stretched it around my knee. I tied the vein to the chicken bone and gave it a twist. Not only did it serve as a functional tourniquet, it provided the extra sustenance I needed until help arrived. I vowed, then, to eat fried chicken every day for the rest of my life . . .

Hear, Oh Humankind, the prayer of the heart
Are we not one?
Have we not one desire to heal our Mother Earth
to bind her wounds?
Are we not all sisters and brothers?
Are we not all grand children of the same mystery?
Do we not all want to live and be loved?
Do we not all want to work and play and sing and dance together?
Hear my heart's prayer o' Humankind
Life is the only treasure
We are the custodians of it
It is our sacred trust
Life is wondrous, awesome and holy
Life is burning glory, and its price is simply this:
Courage.
We must have enough to love.

A Farewell to London

Dear, damned, distracting town, farewell!
Thy fools no more I'll tease:
This year in peace, ye critics dwell,
Ye harlots, sleep at ease!

Soft B------s and rough C------s adieu,
Earl Warwick make your moan
The lively H------k and you
May knock up whores alone.

To drink and droll be Rowe allowed
Till the third watchman's toll;
Let Jervas gratis paint, and Frowde
Save threepence and his soul

Farewell, Arbuthnot's raillery
On every learnéd sot;
And Garth, the best good Christian he,
Although he knows it not.

Litot, farewell! thy bard must go;
Farewell, unhappy Tonson!
Heaven gives thee for thy lose of Rowe,
Lean Philips and fat Johnson.
Why should I stay? Both parties rage;
My vixen mistress squalls;
The wits in envious feuds engage:
And Homer (damn him) calls.

The love of arts lies cold and dead
In Halifax's urn;
And not one Muse of all he fed
Has yet the grace to mourn.

My friends, by turn, my friends by confound,
Betray, and are betrayed:
Poor Y------r's sold for fifty pounds,
And B-----ll is jade.

Why make I friendships with the great,
When I no favor seek?
Or follow girls, seven hours in eight?
I used but once a week.

Still idle, with a busy air,
Deep whimsies to contrive;
The gayest valetudinaire,
Most thinking rake, alive.

Solicitous for others' ends,
Though fond of dear reprose;
Careless or drowsy with my friends,
And frolic with my foes.

Luxurious lobster-nights, farewell,
For sober, studious days!
And Burlington's delicious meal,
For salads, tarts, and pease!

Adieu to all, but Gay alone,
Whose soul, sincere and free,
Loves all mankind, but flatters none,
And so may starve with me.

Lochinvar

Oh, young Lochinvar is come out of the west, -
Through all the wide Border his steed was the best,
And save his good broadsword he weapons had none, -
He rode all unarm'd and he rode all alone.
So faithful in love, and so dauntless in war,
There never was knight like the young Lochinvar.

He stay'd not for break, and he stopp'd not for stone,
He swam the Eske river where ford there was none,
But ere he alighted at Netherby gate,
The bride had consented, the gallant came late;
For a laggard in love and a dastard in war was to wed the fair Ellen of brave Lochinvar.

So boldly he enter'd the Netherby hall,
'Mong bridesmen and kinsmen and brothers and all,
Then spoke the bride's father, his hand on his sword
(For the poor craven bridegroom said never a word),
"Oh, come ye in peace here, or come ye in war,
Or to dance at our bridal, young Lord Lochinvar?"

"I long woo'd your daughter, - my suit you denied;
Love swells like the Solway, but ebbs like the tide;
And now I am come, with this lost love of mine
To lead but one measure, drink one cup of wine.
There are maidens in Scotland more lovely, by far,
That would gladly be bride to the young Lochinvar."

The bride kissed the goblet, the knight took it up,
He quaffed off the wine and he threw down the cup.
She look'd down to blush, and she look'd up to sigh,
With a smile on her lips and a tear in her eye.
He took her soft hand ere her mothr could bar;
"Now we tread a measure," said young Lochinvar.

So stately his form, and so lovely her face,
That never a hall such a galliard did grace,
While her mother did fret, and her father did fume,
And the bridegroom stood dangling his bonnet and plume,
And the bridesmaids whisper'd, "Twere better by far
To have match'd our fair cousin with young Lochinvar."

One touch to her hand , and one word in her ear,
When they reached the hall door, and the charger stood near;
So light to the croup the fair lady he swung,
So light to the saddle before her he sprung!
"She is won! We are gone, over bank, bush, and scaur;
They'll have fleet steeds that follow," quoth young Lochinvar.

There was mounting 'mong Graemes of the Netherby clan;
Fortsters, Fenwicks and Musgraves, they rode and they ran;
There was racing and chasing on Cannoble Lee,
But the lost bride of Netherby ne'er did they see.
So daring in love, and so dauntless in war,
Have ye e'er heard of gallant like young Lochinvar?

And let me be, let me die inside
Let me know the way from of this world of hate in you
Cause the dye is cast, and the bitch is back
And we're all dead yeah we're all dead
Inside the future of a shattered past
I lie just to be real, and i'd die just to feel
Why do the same old things keep on happening?
Because beyond my hopes there are no feelings
Bless the martyrs and kiss the kids
For knowing better, for knowing this Cause you're all whores and i'm a fag
And i've got no mother and i've got no dad
To save me the wasted, save me from myself
I lie just to be real, and i'd die just to feel
Why do the same old things keep on happening?
Because beyond my hopes there are no feelings
Everybody's lost just waiting to be found
Everyone's a thought just waiting to fade
So Fuck it all cause i don't care
So what somehow somewhere we dared
To try to dare to dare for a little more
I lie just to be real, and i'd die just to feel
Why do the same old things keep on happening?
Because beyond my hopes there are no reasons

Andrew Redman: At It Again

Many were shocked on the warm afternoon of April 2nd. Oddly enough, it looks like someone had built speed bumps on the school's newly created handicapped ramps.

"The whole ordeal is very disturbing, mainly because I can't log roll down--I mean, um, mainly because we can't use the wheelchair ramps," Harmony's director, Steve "Roc" Bonchek reported.

On April 4th, the culprit was found. Apparently, Bart's Samaritan class had gone bad. Bart believed that a wheelchair ramp would be a good idea; Andrew Redman of the Middle School thought otherwise. Devilish Andrew convinced Bart that speed bumps on the ramp would keep the disabled from traveling on them too quickly.

"Andrew is in for it this time" said Bart, after someone had brought to his attention that speed bumps on the ramp may not be too "handy" for the handicapped.

"It's not my fault he fell for it. Besides...at least we won't see Roc log-rolling down the ramp anymore." said Andrew innocently.

Inventions Class Goes Haywire

A stunned Katy Kelly walked into her middle-school room, only to find it littered with screws, twisted metal, greasy gears, and springs galore. It seemed that her daily Inventions Class had gone awry. The maniacal kids had taken apart every machine in the room. She lost her computer, her calculators, even her desk. As Katy was later to discover, many students had been seriously injured when they began licking 9-volt batteries.

"I puth the batherwy to my thung, and ith didn' feel tho bad," groaned Wes Biddle.

When asked about how she would handle the situation, Katy simply responded with,"They took it apart, they put it back together."

"Thit," said Wes.

Justin "Freak" Goudy was in real trouble on the afternoon of Tuesday the 12th of March. Oddly enough, his hand had been super glued to his chin.

"Geddit off! Geddit off!" whined Justin.

When the culprit was caught, it turned out to be Thomas Buhls, who, as a practical joke, filled Justin's hand lotion bottle with an epoxy resin.

Matters got worse when Justin returned the next day covered with bruises. Tansy Troup had given Justin a wallopin' when she had mistaken his glue mishap for a blown kiss.

If Alice Platz hadn't shown up with her trusty totem-pole chisel, we would never have gotten Justin's hand unstuck. Thanks, Alice.

Six Degrees of Tim Rice

An interesting phenomenon has been discovered: virtually every person in the world can, within 6 links, be traced to Tim Rice of the Middle school.

For example: Justin "Freak" Goudy's uncle knows Arnold Schwarzenegar. In other words, Justin's uncle knows Arnold, Justin knows his uncle, and Tim Rice knows Justin. Thus we can trace Arnold Schwarzenegar to Tim Rice. Other links include Jim Carrey, Sandra Bullock, Jim Henson, and Goldie Hawn.

These suspicions arose when the book "Six Degrees of Kevin Bacon" was released in September of 1996

"Wow," exclaimed Rice.

Lund Bribes Way To Cover

Harmony junior, Andy Lund's desire to be on the cover of the school's annual yearbook was not a secret. For years Andy had begged, pleaded, & bribed, until this year, when his manipulations took a whole new turn.

A Gizzzard investigation has revealed that Harmony alumni David Canada was paid $50 to take Lund hostage. Canada was under specific instructions not to demand a ransom, but rather to demand Lund's face grace the the same cover Canada's had 3 years previously.

Investigative reporter Sacha Vosekas uncovered the truth while tapping Lund's phone & personal pager in regards to the mysteriously missing student solidarity money.

When asked about the incident, Canada was quoted as saying, "Hey, I was just tryin' to help my Danish brotha."

Student Solidarity Blows School's Money On Trip To Jamaica

Libby knew something was miss when the Student Solidarity Group said they were going to get some streamers for the Valentine's Day Dance and came back a few weeks later with sun tans and Jamaican accents.

Ideas like re-sodding the field, getting new computers and other equipment for the school were flushed down the drain like so many balls of phlegm.

When confronted with the allegations, student Andy Lund was quoted as saying, "Hey Mon, get off my dreads." He seems to have felt that the Student Solidarity Committee needed a break. In his words, "We needed to get into that lovin' mood in order to create some Valentine ambience, Mon."

Earlier this year, Student Solidarity was given $1500 to spend on "Something for the school." When not a single student put in a proposal, Student Solidarity did what they thought best -- springing for a few carefree weeks on the sunny beaches of Jamaica.

A bulk of the money was spent getting numerous bags of polyester dreadlocks. In order for them to "mesh," Lund was said to have spent the remaining five bucks on participating in a wet-shirt contest.

Upon their return they quickly grabbed several rolls of toilet paper which were dipped in Ursina's locker paint and strung in the gym just in time for St. Patrick's Day.

Cloning Disaster in the Middle-School

The Middle-School was in chaos at 1:47 P.M. on Thursday the 20th. It appeared that Thomas Buhls had cloned his friend Asim.

"After I saw that sheep-cloning article in the Herald-Times, I simply couldn't help to think what a good subject Asim would make. The whole process was very interesting," said Thomas Buhls excitedly.

"It was absolutely horrible," moaned Asim. "Now I feel sorry for what his brother James has to go through."

It was reported that Thomas would have cloned Asim more than once. As School Director Steve "Roc" Bonchek says, "This time Thomas has simply gone too far..."

Way to go, Roc.

Yearbook Retracts Story:

Harmony High Tractors Do Not Win State Basketball Championship

Yearbook Editor, Leila Grace Voyles, admitted that she was duped by a T-shirt scam perpetuated by students in Bart & Amy's class. "Those damn shirts sure looked legitimate," said Voyles, "heck, I don't know basketballs from blowflies." The 200 shirts, apparently the brainchild of Daniel Ovando, showed Tractor guard Harlan Ort (number 10) dunking the ball above a score: Harmony Tractors--82, Gary Roosevelt--81. "We all assumed it was true," said Voyles, "I guess we should have asked somebody or something." Ort reported that, while he didn't actually remember winning the state championship, he assumed it just slipped his mind. Ovando who made $1200 on the bogus shirts, said he needed the money for Magic Cards.

Tansy Troup Changes Name

Early Sat. morning Tansy Mae Troup was still Tansy Mae Troup. But a few hours later was known as Triola Cusack. "We all knew she liked the name," said friend Flora Cole, "but we never expected her to actually change it this much." People suspect that her obsession with John Cusack highly influenced her choice for a last name.

While friends are pretty much used to calling her Triola, her mother is having trouble getting used to it. "Every once in a while I still find a Tansy slipping out," she said at a Tuesday press conference.

"It's not that I don't like the name Tansy Troup," Triola later said, "I just like Triola Cusack more."

Middle Schoolers Demand Refund On Bogus Graceland Visit

"What a ripoff," screamed a visibly shaken Claire Morton, "Elvis wasn't even there!-- hell, for sixteen bucks I expected to meet the King!" These sentiments were echoed by Middle Schoolers in general who erupted in a chorus of "WE WANT OUR MONEY BACK, WE WANT OUR MONEY BACK!" The misunderstanding was apparently the result of trip organizer Kejal Crosson-Elturan, who convinced students to select Memphis on the grounds that Elvis was alive, and willing to meet with them. Elturan added, "Hey, I didn't mean literally.... jeese, get a life!"

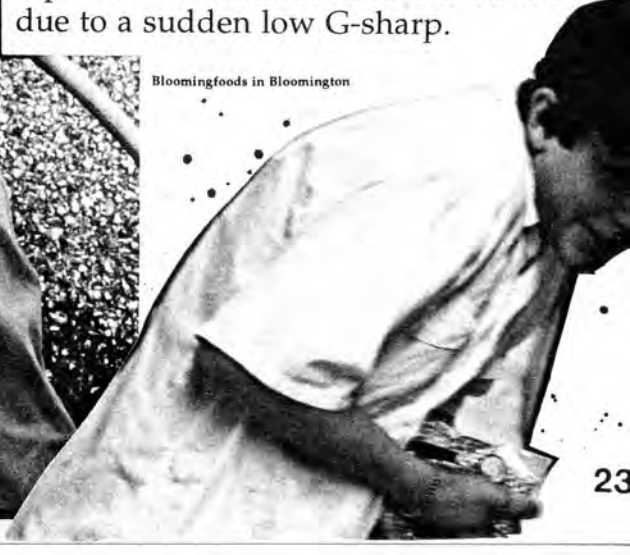
Mario's Subwoofer Tragedy

Harmony student Mario Russo proved once again that a man is only as big as his subwoofer, when all of Bloomington was placed under a state of emergency due to seismic activity. Tectonic plate readings indicated a 7.7 disruption in the Elm Heights vicinity.

Mario previously created much subwoofer envy amongst his lesser endowed classmates when he installed a 64 inch Thunder Rumble Zeus Subwoofer. This massive machine designed to project the thousand voice Mormon Tabernacle choir was carried in Russo's specially built Woofermobile. Said to sound like "a 1000 megaton bomb dropped on a yodeling convention," it seems Russo had slowly grown immune to it's bone pulverizing effects. Unfortunately, fellow front seat passenger Tanya Enright Randolph had not, when her hips were dislocated into the backseat due to a sudden low G-sharp.



Conclusion:

In the Pop Culture Marketplace of late 20th century America, where style overpowers substance, and perception equates to reality, Vonnegut's point that "We are what we pretend to be, so we must be very careful about what we pretend to be," speaks volumes. It is the fantasy of television, movies, advertising, that has defined our age. It is an age where one exercises their autonomy by choosing what particular fantasy or fantasies to partake of--Nike, Airwalks, Geritol, etc. This is what our humble yearbook is about--stepping into the unreality of promotion (advertising) and making it a reflection of oneself. We bring it to you with a bit of caution, a bit of fun, and hopefully a bit of insight into what makes us all tick.

We'd like to acknowledge the fine work of students who went far and beyond the call of duty. First, Emmy Blackwell, who ends her stint as lead photographer--you're a tough act to follow. Hannah Dumes, Claire Morton, Beth Freyman, and especially Zeri Ryerson, you four handled layout with infinite patience on finite time. Riley and Summer--without you there wouldn't be a book. Grace, you made the editorial decisions & plotted the book's course beautifully. Flora & Sona, you two did a bit of everything, and did it well. Rudy, Tansy, Avery & especially Ruby--you hung in there day after day and did whatever had to be done. Robin, thanks for showing us the secrets to the scanner. Andy, Tim, both Justins, and Josh--well, you're to blame for the Gizzzard. Claire, your subliminal messages are smashing. And to the students and teachers who sweated over their individual pages--we appreciate your anxiety. And last but not least, Caroline Nash, who stepped in at the end when everyone was exhausted and managed to pull it all together.

In closing, we'd like to say, save your money.
