Top Secret

Yearbook themes are meant to be general, ideally suited to a variety of approaches. So, when "Top Secret" was proposed, we anticipated anything from personal revelation to political scullduggery. Well, it turned out that personal revelation easily won out, with nary a squeek about government leaks, secret interrogations, weapons of mass destruction, etc. Come on, don't these kids read the papers.

However something surprising did emerge--St. Milfrid's Academy. It's a swell place where "guiding, educating, succeeding" is more than just a slogan, it's an actual motto. And that motto is reflected in the bright smiling faces of the students. Most of them anyway, a couple maybe not so much--it's hard to tell when they're chewing on their ties. St. Milfrid became the yearbook staff's little refuge. A home away from home where life was orderly & predictable.

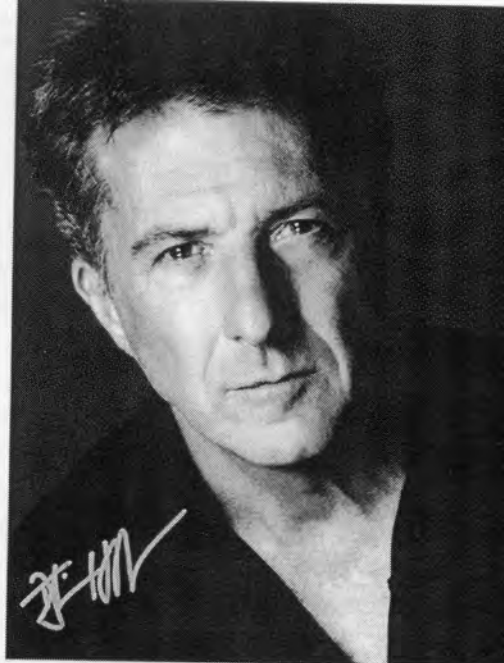

Anyway, as with all Harmony yearbooks, the result is a team effort. Well, actually several teams: graphics ("outstanding"), writers ("brilliant"), photographers ("stunning"), sales ("stellar"), and the press ("scandalous"). All in all, a splendid representation of youth "guiding, educating, & succeeding" at the task set before them.

Enjoy....

The Road Not Taken

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveller, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;

Then took the other, as just as far,
and having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted wear;
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden black.
Oh, I kept the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on to way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I-
I took the one less travelled by,
And that has made all the difference.

A black and white photograph showing a first-person perspective of a person's leg and foot. The person is wearing a dark, heavy rubber boot and is stepping onto a muddy, uneven ground. The ground is covered in small pieces of debris, twigs, and what appears to be a piece of fabric or a tarp. The overall scene suggests a rugged, outdoor environment, possibly a construction site or a field of operations. THE EMPRESS.

Once bought a used car from someone that lived about half a mile from me for $50.
Hopped in and drove off, only to realize shortly thereafter that the car had absolutely no brakes.
Guided the car in stunned and petrified amazement through two green traffic lights and across a lane of on-coming traffic into my street (mercifully it was a Sunday).
Finally brought the car to a halt by driving it into the backyard of the house I lived in and crashing it into a tree

My First Bike Stolen Twice in One Day!

My brother made my first bike for me one week in the summer of 1968, when I was nine years old. He was six years older and sometimes did amazingly big projects like this out of the blue. I think it had something to do with a Boy Scout merit badge. He was crazy for merit badges back then -- he was determined to be an Eagle Scout. Every day for a week we set up shop in the front yard. He set up a tarp with the tools and parts, and I set up a lemonade stand to make money to pay for wheels and a seat and handlebars from one of the several used-bicycle repair shops in our neighborhood. We kind of lived out there for a week; the neighbors seemed pretty entertained and bought a lot of lemonade. Little kids lined up to hand tools back and forth to my brother. There was a bicycle factory two blocks away and we got a frame they had tossed out near their dumpster. It was a woman's frame, but I didn't care -- I was pretty short and by that time was so sick of not being able to reach the pedals on a men's bike that I was ready for comfort! I remember we went at night to get it and we pretended we were cat burglars.

Parts we bought: butterfly handlebars (swooping back), a banana seat (loooong!) and two different-sized wheels (bigger in the back). We used up three cans of gold spray paint and my brother signed it with a marker just like Picasso. (Maybe it was the Modern Art Merit Badge he was working on...) It also ended up having a bunch of streamers, half-a-deck of cards clothes-pinned to the spokes and reflectors everywhere (my mother's idea). We went in that last Saturday afternoon and had a glorious dinner fit for Roman gladiators (something like liver and onions) only to waddle back out and find the magnificent bike . . . missing! In a matter of minutes every breathing mammal in a two-block radius knew we had a missing gold bike. My brother was really good at this kind of mobilization, it probably came from one of his merit badges. In no time at all, we had three kids drawing up posters, a fleet of bicycle teams flying through the alleys and older kids working the phones. This went on for what seemed a life time ... until we had pretty much given up on it. As you can imagine, we were pretty bummed out. There would be no parading through the neighborhood on the golden bike. There would be no merit badge number 236. Finally, I think we were drinking the last of the lemonade when a little kid I barely knew who lived a mile away rode up on the gold bike in front of our house! He had seen someone he didn't know ride up to the Elston Milk Market on the bike and carelessly toss it against the wall outside. A big kid who didn't seem to fit the bike. The little kid thought he recognized it from my yard, so he stole it back and brought it back to us! What a brave and daring thing to do! I remember thinking that if he had been wrong in his detective work, he might have gone to prison for stealing what he thought was my bike. Thank god that my brother had created such a unique bike and that the little boy had been such a good observer. We laughed at what must have been the expression on the face of the big bully when he came out of the Milk Market and reached for his pirate booty. Hah. Somehow, it made my bike seem even more special... My dad gave him a five-dollar reward right out of his wallet. My brother took a picture of it for his merit badge. I rode it around through the golden sunset until the street lights came on and the bats started swooping down to get mosquitoes. That night, I brought it into my room and slept with it leaning next to my bed.

My bicycle's name is Margaret.

GSM Neither Golden Nor Shining

"I really don't know what happened, reported Evan Voss, chair for the high school family meeting on the Friday in question. "One minute Maggie was telling us another story ending in 'you had to be there,' when Jurion just stood up and started preaching." Witnesses described Jurion's tirade as "a horrific experience, as traumatizing as the Stale Bagel Riot of '04." Ben McMullen commented, "The details of the cuteness of the puppy was excruciatingly redundant. His language was somniferous and he was flailing like an amputee fallen into a cement mixer. I did not extract any elements that could be called neither golden nor shining."

DDR Causes Actual Revolution

High school student Devon McShane was found in the downtown area two hours late for class one Monday afternoon screaming through a megaphone, "Eviscerate the Proletariat!" The cause of such strange behaviour has been traced back to her amazing skills at DDR. "I would die for the cause if I had to," declared Marsha Reed, a fellow Dancing Dancing Revolutionary. When asked what the revolution was all about, no participants apparently really knew.

GIZZAR'D Staff Accused of Being Morbid

Scandal rocked the yearbook staff yesterday after yearbook editor Marty Belcher. "For years, the staff of the Gizzzar'd have gotten away with poisoning the minds of the younger students. Well, that all stops now. I'm revamping the Gizzzar'd with a new, more uplifting kind of article."

High School Student Takes Well-Deserved Break

"You know, I'm just doing so much," Will Lockridge told reporters while reclining on a couch in the copy room. "I have classes for most of my morning, and then- like-more classes in the afternoon. If I don't stop and just, you know, relax a little bit, I think I might have a nervous breakdown. Or something." Will was later found sleeping in the computer lab with a guitar in his lap.

Duply Sold to Mexicans

Local entrepreneurs Jack Michel and Dylan Galyan-Wilkerson recently sold their growing Internet Empire to Mexico. "That was stupid!" stated Jack, regretful of his decision. "It was your idea!" exclaimed Dylan, "I'm going to key your Lambo for that!"

McCarry Says "In the Honor of Dylan and Sometimes Jack, Please Jump Up & Down" One Too Many Times

Middle schoolers tolerated McCarry's repetitive request for the last time. "It was meant as a running joke," began middle schooler Avery Street. "It seems a bit of an overreaction to super glue his lips together." McCarry is quoted as saying, "Hmm mmm hm, mmhmm, hm, mm mm."

Entire Freshmen Class Accused of Asexual Harassment

It all started one morning in 9th grade English, when Sarah Kolodziej told Moyshe Kerler "You're dumb, but not because you are of a different sex than I." Moyshe countered with, "Well, you smell bad, but that has nothing to do with yo gender." The chaos soon spread, nonsexist insults flying across the classroom.

Roly acquires cult following

High schooler Roly Carspecken was walking down the hall when suddenly a crowd of people dressed in sarongs randomly gathered around him, throwing rose petals at his feet.

"I can die happy!" exclaimed an unknown Carspeckist, "I have seen Him!" The Carspeckist then killed himself, much to the horror of Roly. The cult is the fastest growing religion in the history of the world with thousands of members in just two weeks. It has already divided into two denominations, the Rolites (AKA the Holy Roly's), and the Carspeckists. The Carspeckists' religious requirements include a pilgrimage to Harmony, at which point they kill themselves, whereas the Rolites must imitate Roly in speech and dress, and they must also change their names to Roland Carspecken. "It all started as a joke, I didn't know that they would be so easily manipulated," said the accidental founder of the cult, Max Barrentine, who told escapees from the Heaven's Weasels cult that they should worship Roly for his eccentricities. He didn't know then that they were still brainwashed.

Students Learning Latin Discover Dormant Powers

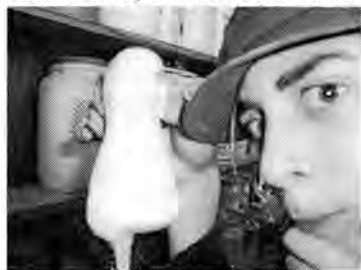

When Lance Kellar and Silas Jackson decided they wanted to learn Latin, they had no idea what they were in for. "We just thought we'd learn 'quid pro quo' and 'per capita' and 'et cetera'. We had no idea what we were in for." Silas comments. After a few weeks of struggling to retain the dead language, they got it. "Something just clicked. Then, weird stuff started happening," Lance says, "I would be practicing in the copy room, and all of the sudden, someone would talk back. It only took me a moment to realize it was a poltergeist." The same phenomenon occurred with fellow Latin student, Silas, who is quoted as saying, "Talking to the dead is like trying to communicate with the elderly; they like applesauce and talking to themselves."

I want to make a correction of a mistake in one of the articles. Moyshe Kerler, mentioned in "Entire Freshman Class Accused of Asexual Harassment," is not a freshman. ## Alex Voyles Goes to Student Solidarity, Demands Bell Tower

Angered by the current state of the school, middle schooler Alex Voyles barged into the offices of Student Solidarity with a list of demands. Chief among this list was that Harmony get a bell tower. ### David's Hawaii Obsession is Deemed "Obsessive"

"I know he loves Hawaii. Everyone knows he loves Hawaii. You'd have to be blind and deaf not to know," Chelsea Smith, a student of the teacher in question, commented when asked how she felt. David can be seen walking down the hallway any time of day, strumming his ukelele, donning a tropical-print shirt and at least a dozen leis. "It's getting a little excessive," says fellow teacher Sally Ann Murphy. "At first the constant singing was enjoyable, if not slightly irksome, but his channeling of King Kalakaua in Family Meetings is getting pretty weird.

Dear Harmony,

It seems like just yesterday I became a part of this family and I must admit that two years was way too short. The work that I have done with the yearbook has helped me grow artistically and professionally. As I move on to the next phase of my life, I will remember my years at Harmony as the most influential and exciting years of my high school career. I would like to use this opportunity to thank everyone for letting me be a part of this community and for all of the support and friendship, I can honestly say it has changed my life!

Milly Bids Farewell

Hi! This is Milly. As the mascot of St. Milfrid's Academy, I want to tell you that you made a very wonderful and interesting year for me.

As I was wandering through the halls this past year, I noticed that through motivation and perseverance most of you were able to achieve knowledge through opportunity and have a little fun while doing it.

Because of school spirit and interested minds, St. Milfrid continued its harmonious pathway to knowledge. I think that the teachers and pupils prospered equally from the year that has ended. As a result of all of this I will remain your humble friend and mascot next year.

But, sadly, a few St. Milfridians, who worked long and hard on this wonderful yearbook, are moving on--Shahana, our head photographer is off to a place called India. And Crystal, one of our graphics editors is going to college. She's going to an art school.

So, in closing, let's remember the words of St. Milfrid himself:
"Fair play and hard work never put an eye out."
